INTRODUCTION

Oklahoma may be one of America's best kept secrets of good places to hold weddings. The state has four mountain ranges, 200 man-made lakes, and a good selection and variety of wedding venues. Oklahoma City, American's seventh largest city, can accommodate large weddings with guests flying in from across the country and around the world. Intimate outdoor gatherings and unusual and fun indoor venues are all good places to get married in Oklahoma.

1) Findley's Lakeside Resort

Findley's Lakeside Resort offers customizable, all-inclusive wedding packages. The gazebo ceremony venue is on a hilltop overlooking Ft. Gibson Lake. Weddings are planned by a wedding planner certified by The American Academy of Wedding Professionals—Donna. Donna also does flower arranging, landscaping and interior decorating. The resort schedules just one wedding a day, so there are no conflicts with other wedding parties. Choose from formal, traditional, modern, or casual themes tailored to your colors. The lodge has areas for the bride's party and the groom's party to get ready, as well as a reception area. Catering is on-site.

2) Sheraton Oklahoma City Hotel

Choose the Sheraton Oklahoma City Hotel for your large wedding of up to 800 people. Weddings are arranged by a personal wedding specialist, and include a custom website for your guests to reserve rooms and RSVP. A dance floor, table linens, chairs, and centerpieces are also included. For couples concerned about their guests drinking and driving and/or finding accommodation the Sheraton is large enough to accommodate all your guests. A room and champagne for the bridal couple is complimentary.

3) Palace Oak Event Center

The Palace Oak Event Center in El Reno, Oklahoma gives you the choice of full-service wedding planning or just booking the venue and using your own planner, caterer, and other services. The 3,000 square foot dance floor makes this an especially good wedding venue choice if you want your wedding guests to dance the night away. The Palace has a prep kitchen for your caterer, a sound system, private dressing room, coat check, and more. Your guests will be impressed with the old-world décor.

4) The Sam Noble Museum of Natural History

The Sam Noble Museum of Natural History provides a variety of choices for your budget and needs. Wedding packages are both special and fun, with after-hours museum access for guests, and receptions around dinosaur skeletons and sculptures. The facility rental coordinator reserves your chosen area exclusively for your wedding, so it will not be interrupted by museum visitors. You can choose from full weddings with catering to just a small ceremony, or reception only. For extra fun, try having a exotic prehistoric wedding theme complete with fern decorated cake, and unusual flowers.
